

ANONYMOUS 17175 - New submission from Early Years Strategy - Public Submissions

I think the government should offer more support to parents of young children to ensure better outcomes for children. Support can be higher parenting payments, longer maternity/paternity leave, increased services such as home visits by care and support workers to ensure parents are coping and children are being cared for properly.